UWA offers several postgraduate education degrees:

- Graduate Diploma in/Master of Curriculum Studies
- Graduate Diploma in/Master of Educational Leadership
- Graduate Diploma in Educational Studies
- Graduate Diploma in Professional Education
- Master of Education (available by coursework or with a thesis component)
- Master of School Leadership
- Doctor of Education
- Doctor of Philosophy

The courses vary in length, ranging from two years part-time (Graduate Diploma) to four years full-time (Doctor of Education or Philosophy). Classes are scheduled to suit the needs of working professionals, either in early evenings during semester or in blocks over weekends and school holidays. The Graduate Diplomas in Curriculum Studies and Educational Leadership articulate with the Masters degrees – i.e. students can enrol in the Graduate Diploma initially and make an informed choice to upgrade to the Masters later.

Our newest course is the Graduate Diploma in/Master of Curriculum Studies. This course has been designed to broaden practising teachers’ knowledge and skills in curriculum specialisation aligned with the new Australian Curriculum. The course provides relevant renewal to primary and secondary teachers in the areas of curriculum development, pedagogy and assessment and the use of ICT, aligned with the new requirements of the Australian Curriculum and the National Professional Standards for Teachers. The course is currently offered to specialist teachers of English, History and Geography, with further specialisations anticipated later on.

For further information on our postgraduate degrees visit our website: www.education.uwa.edu.au